Exercises in public speaking are required from all the classes weekly throughout the year; they have exercises also in translation and English composition at the discretion of the Faculty.

Instruction in French, German, and Hebrew is provided for such as desire it.

The students of all the departments are required to attend Bible Class on the Sabbath, and the regular lecture which is delivered in the College Chapel; and also, one other public service, in such church as their parents or guardians shall direct.

A record is kept of the punctuality, diligence, scholarship, and general behaviour of each student; a report of which is sent to the parent or guardian at his request, or at the discretion of the Faculty.

TERMS OF ADMISSION TO THE COLLEGE CLASSES.

For admission into the Freshmen Class, the applicant is examined in Arithmetic, English Grammar, and Geography; Latin Grammar, (Gould's Adams',) Historia Græca or Jacob's Latin Reader, Cæsar's Commentaries, Cicero's Select Orations, Ovid's Metamorphoses (expurgated,) Sallust, Virgil, and the first part of Mair's Introduction to Latin Syntax; Greek Grammar, Greek Testament, Græca Minora (in part;) Algebra through Simple Equations.

For admission to advanced standing, the applicant must sustain examination in the studies completed by the class he proposes to enter.

Testimonials of good character are in all cases required.

The earliest age at which it is advisable for a student to enter the Freshmen Class, is fourteen years.

Commencement is on the third Wednesday of September.

The vacation after commencement is six weeks. The first session commences at the close of this vacation, and continues twenty weeks. The spring vacation is six weeks. The second session is twenty weeks, and closes on the third Wednesday of September.

The two Literary Societies of the College hold a public exhibition at the close of the first session. The annual exhibition of the Junior Class is on the evening preceding Commencement.

The Literary Societies have two halls in the fourth story of the main College building, which are spacious and elegantly furnished. Each Society has also an extensive and valuable library.

The Brainerd Evangelical Society has a spacious hall appropriated to its papers and library. This Society holds its anniversary, and has a public address, at the close of the winter session.

EXAMINATIONS.

All the Classes, both of the Academical Department and of the College, are thoroughly examined, at the close of each session, in presence of the Faculty, a Committee of the Trustees, and such literary gentlemen and students as may choose to attend. Except that the final examinations of the Senior Class begin on the fifth Monday preceding Commencement day, and under graduates are excluded.

EXPENSES.

The price of boarding in the College refectory is $1 87½ per week, which for forty weeks is	$75 00
Tuition, room-rent, use of library and apparatus,	40 00
Fuel, stoves and tending fires for winter session,	7 00
For incidental expenses, 50 cents each session,	1 00
	$123 00

Pupils of the Academical Department who occupy rooms in the College, pay $15 per session for tuition and room rent; those who do not room in the College, pay $10 for tuition. Each pupil, not boarding in the College, pays $1 50 in the winter session for fuel in the school room.

The bills for each session are payable half at the beginning and half at the middle of each session; except the fuel bill for the winter session, which is all to be paid in advance. When payment is promptly made according to this rule, a deduction of 12½ cents per week is made from the price of boarding.

Washing is done in the Steward's department at 37½ cents per dozen pieces.

Students provide their own bed and furniture.

Students under the patronage of the General Assembly's Board of Education, and others who are preparing for the gospel ministry, and whose character and circumstances, in the judgment of the Trustees, entitle them to the benefit, have boarding in the College refectory at $1 per week. The Trustees supply the balance out of funds provided for that purpose.

All students, except those whose parents or guardians reside near the Institution, are required to board in the Refectory. An exception is also made in favour of such young men as find it necessary to husband their means, in order to continue their studies. This description of students (often among the most deserving) are permitted to retire to farm houses to board; by which they can considerably reduce their expenses.

THE ACADEMICAL DEPARTMENT.

This is under the immediate government and instruction of the Principal, assisted by a Tutor: the whole being subject to the general direction and control of the College Faculty. It is designed to give a thorough training to its members, in all the branches of an English Education: and also in the elements of Latin, Greek and Mathematics, preparatory to their entrance upon the studies of the College Proper. It is always opened with reading the scriptures and prayer, being entirely distinct from the College Proper and in a building at some distance from the same. Such of the pupils however, as board and room in the College edifice, are required to attend morning and evening prayers, with the other students, in the Chapel, as well as the College Lecture, and are in all other respects under the same supervision and government.

THE REFECTORY.

This is now in a separate building, some hundred yards distant from the main edifice. Besides the spacious dining saloon, kitchens &c., this building accommodates the families of the Steward and Assistant Steward and all the helpers about the establishment. The Steward is a gentleman of correct and blameless christian character; of business habits, commercially speaking; of kind and concialiatory manners, yet firm, but respectful in his intercourse with the students and his government in the dining saloon. He receives a fixed salary, which lifts him above all ground of suspicion and charge of interested motives. Two Tutors, who room in College, always eat in the Refectory; and the President and Professors frequently drop in, without previous notice, and take a meal with the students: so that we know the establishment to be conducted in a very orderly and handsome manner.

GENERAL SUPERVISION.

Two Tutors residing in the College, and Vice President Nassau, occupying the eastern end of the building, keep up a perpetual vigilance over the whole; in which also they are aided by the other Professors. This system of paternal supervision and the circumstance, that a decided majority of all our students, of adult years or approximating thereto, are professors of religion, secure a fine moral tone and make the Institution a place of unusual safety for youth of fewer years and of less fixed principles. It is a felicitous circumstance and evidence of a good moral atmosphere, that no case of discipline by the Faculty has occurred during the last session. Blessed is that College, whose laws are lost sight of, by becoming incarnate in the hearts of all its members.

THE COLLEGE.

La Fayette College is fifty-five miles, nearly, due north from Philadelphia, with which city we have daily communication (Sundays excepted) by three lines of stages; one, and the most direct, is by Doylestown; another by Germantown, Montgomery Square and Bethlehem; the third by steamboat to Trenton and stage from that city. There is also a fourth line,—triweekly through Doylestown. Fare in all varies from 2 to $2\frac{1}{2}$ dollars.

We are seventy-two miles from New York, with which we have daily connexion, by two lines of stages and rail road cars: one through Morristown, the other through Somerville. Fare $2.50. Time ten hours to either city.

The College is situated within the borough of Easton, yet without the town, from which it is separated by the Bushkill Creek and that lofty limestone ledge which, on the north, skirts this beautiful little city. Few localities on this continent, or any other, have shared more largely in the beauteous bounties of nature and of art, than "the Forks of the Delaware." And no one point could be selected in the whole vast assemblage of enchanting scenery, whence the eye of delicate sensibility could drink so largely of the streams of delightful vision, as from our Mons scientiæ. Strangers and even frequent visiters, as they ascend the hill, are generally seen to stop and look back; and again to start and again, when the brow is gained, to pause long and look down and all around the amphitheatre, as if reluctant to turn the eye away from these bold lines of nature and delicate pencillings of art.
